

LECTRA. SURVEY

“The Post COVID-19 Events Landscape”

As we emerge from the Covid-19 pandemic, we know that different companies, people and geographies will have different policies, procedures and levels of comfort when it comes to participation in live events. Meanwhile, remote events will remain an important piece of industry engagement for the foreseeable future, but we know that people will still be selective about how and when they attend.

Lectra would like to hear from you and invite you to take our two-minute survey on live and remote events that will help us to gauge the state of the industry when it comes to how we interact, network and share knowledge in this new landscape.

Thank you for your participation as we work together to create a stronger and more resilient industry.
