The Uyghur Forced Labor Prevention Act (UFLPA) went into effect. Will I have merchandise to sell?

The UFLPA, in effect on June 21st, establishes that the importation of any goods made in whole or in part in the Xinjiang Uyghur Autonomous region (Xinjiang) are presumed to be made with forced labor regardless of where they are shipped from. What does this mean to the Fashion Industry?

Richard Wortman and Arthur Bodek of Grunfeld Desiderio Lebowitz Silverman and Klestadt (GDLSK) will address the key provisions under the UFLPA; importer obligations, comparisons with the previous "Withhold Release Order", and how the industry might better work together with the CBP.

This program will touch upon what has happened so far and what to expect for imports of garments and textiles from China and for products whose supply chain touches China.
